9. SUMMARY 1. Herewith the operational background to the action summarized in Reference A: a. Not having seen anything on this subject in the Telegraf despite the fact that other West German newspapers were beginning to play it on their own initiative, we prepared a letter to Arno SCHOLZ, the co-publisher and editor-in-chief of this paper. The letter, dated 9 June 1961, embodies the essential points of the guidance contained in References B and C and requests editorial treatment thereof. Copies of the letter are transmitted as Attachment A. b. By return mail, we received a reply from SCHOLZ, wherein he thanks us for the hint and promises to implement the action as requested. Copies of this letter are transmitted as Attachment B. c. We had lunch with SCHOLZ on 15 June 1961. He had just finished dictating his week-end editorial, a good portion of which is devoted to the Trella system and the Soviet veto demands. As usual, SCHOLZ believed that it will be his editorial which will have swung the Soviets into line if, in fact, this happens. SCHOLZ also promised to represent the Attachment A guidance in any talks he may in the near future have with members of the Soviet Embassy in East Berlin. 2. As Attachment C we are transmitting additional copies of the SCHOLZ editorial, which appeared in the 18 June 1961 edition of the Telegraf . 3. If additional use is made of the SCHOLZ editorial, we would be interested in hearing about it. If appropriate, we would make this known to SCHOLZ for the purpose of whetting his appetite for future collaboration along this line.
